

A Fresh Approach to Biometric Screenings: Activate the Employee's Ownership of Health

We're delighted that you are interested in learning more about this presentation given by Eduardo Sanchez, MD, MPH, FAAHP and David Ashley, MD, MBA, at the Employer Healthcare and Benefits Congress on October 3, 2017.

75% of employees report good or excellent health while also reporting they have a diagnosis of at least 1 chronic disease.

1 in 4 Americans have multiple concurrent chronic conditions & suboptimal health outcomes.

As the doctors discussed in the presentation, many health risk factors are preventable or reversible.

Workplace biometric screenings are objective clinical assessments of risks and risk migration. They start conversations about health among coworkers, motivate employees to visit their PCPs, inspire people to change behaviors, guide company well-being strategy, and demonstrate risk migration year over year.

Building on the data obtained from biometric screenings, other workplace well-being services motivate and support employee ownership of their personal well-being.
